KILRAIN'S JOURNEY SOUTH

THE BALTIMORE PUGILIST AND HIS PARTY START FOR NEW ORLEANS.

With an Announcement of Cheers the Train Pulls Out of Camden Station—Sullivan's Opponent Expects a Hard Fight, but Is Confident of Winning—John L. Sullivan Encourages All the Southern Trip—Public Enthusiasm at the Stations on Both Sides.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 3.—[Special.]—Kilrain, accompanied by Michael, Murphy, and Thad Moore, left this afternoon for New Orleans on one of the Baltimore & Ohio on their way to the battle ground. Kilrain's opponent spent a busy day yesterday in preparing for the journey. He was up early and had breakfast at 7 o'clock. Then he went to the gymnasium, where he had a rub down and a short exercise. Then he went to his home, where he was joined by Dougherty of Philadelphia, the latter of whom will accompany Kilrain on the second stage. Quite a little crowd assembled at the Kilrain residence on Division street to see the fighter start off. Just after 1 the party began to move, and after an affectionate farewell from his wife, who bade him good success, Kilrain entered the conveyance followed by his trainer and seconds, and was driven to Camden station.

There a number of out of town sports had assembled who were to accompany the Kilrain party. There were also about 50 boys gathered at the depot to give Kilrain a parting cheer. As the train pulled down the platform to the ground and a cheering crowd. Kilrain entered the sleeping car with Tony Harris, who is acting as master of ceremonies, carried a portion of Kilrain's baggage down to a State room. He was driven to a hotel to wash and dress and breakfast, and then was brought from England. A pet of which Kilrain was proud as a boy with a new the animals and refused an allowance of being from the stewards of the sport who offered to carry the trophy.

During the train started it halted at Relay House, where Kilrain's brother, Thomas Kilrain, and Jack Ashton, the latter of whom had been with Kilrain in England, joined the party. Kilrain was in the best of spirits, and was joined by the party with cheers as the train moved off. Kilrain's brother, Thomas Kilrain, and Jack Ashton, the latter of whom had been with Kilrain in England, joined the party. Kilrain was in the best of spirits, and was joined by the party with cheers as the train moved off.
